

Dr Angus Crossan – Manager of Innovation, FIAL

Angus is an innovation specialist. He started his career as a researcher at the University of Sydney and then led the R&D investment program for the Australian egg industry. He has founded and worked within a number of start-up ventures in the food and agritech sector and is now using his broad experience to help the Australian food and agribusiness industry harness innovation to access new markets and increase profitability. Angus has won a number of awards including an Australian Government Science and Innovation Award for Young Scientists in 2007 and an International Specialised Skills Fellowship in 2011.

