

Peter Rindt – GM for Business Development, Bosch

Peter engages across many industries in his role as GM for Business Development at Bosch Australia. He uses his experience from building new businesses for Bosch in renewable energy, software & services, manufacturing services and electrified mobility to apply to novel fields of opportunity.

Combined with his knowledge across Bosch's broad portfolio, this allows him to quickly assess business potential and leverage the combined expertise across the group to create effective investments and strategic partnerships. He is part of Bosch's global agriculture strategy team with a focus on the application of technology to the sector.

He works with government, research organisations and start-ups on projects from investment to delivering valuable technological solutions to the AU market.

Peter holds a Bachelor Degree in Engineering (Electrical) and an MBA from Monash University in Melbourne.
